

Offense! Not mere defense!

Right-wing interests have captured much of the United States government.

We who want a better world than they offer should use their worsening crisis to push for what we want. Take the initiative! Go on offense! For example:

- Organize new unions everywhere.
- Recruit more members to existing unions.
- Wage nonviolent direct action campaigns to prevent enforcement of immigration laws, prevent evictions, stop wage theft, settle unhoused people in unused buildings, etc.
- Organize widespread refusal to pay the portion of federal taxes that goes to things we oppose.
- Prepare for a general strike on May Day 2028 (or possibly sooner) to require universal free healthcare or some other big shared demand.
- Spread the understanding that basing our economy on exchange caused the current crisis and that such crises will continue until we free ourselves from exchange.
- Build exchange-free mutual aid relationships and, whenever possible, avoid exchange relationships.

We can also try to make the old institutions work, but doing only that will fail. Exchange caused this crisis and will repeatedly cause other crises if we only try to regulate it. Relying solely on the old institutions and methods also squanders this opportunity to win big gains.

Offense! Not mere defense!

Right-wing interests have captured much of the United States government.

We who want a better world than they offer should use their worsening crisis to push for what we want. Take the initiative! Go on offense! For example:

- Organize new unions everywhere.
- Recruit more members to existing unions.
- Wage nonviolent direct action campaigns to prevent enforcement of immigration laws, prevent evictions, stop wage theft, settle unhoused people in unused buildings, etc.
- Organize widespread refusal to pay the portion of federal taxes that goes to things we oppose.
- Prepare for a general strike on May Day 2028 (or possibly sooner) to require universal free healthcare or some other big shared demand.
- Spread the understanding that basing our economy on exchange caused the current crisis and that such crises will continue until we free ourselves from exchange.
- Build exchange-free mutual aid relationships and, whenever possible, avoid exchange relationships.

We can also try to make the old institutions work, but doing only that will fail. Exchange caused this crisis and will repeatedly cause other crises if we only try to regulate it. Relying solely on the old institutions and methods also squanders this opportunity to win big gains.

